Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 16 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Brightening up after a murky start today. Feeling milder.

Today:
A cloudy and damp start, with patchy rain making slow progress eastwards this morning. Some brighter skies developing in western parts, but a chance of brief, heavy showers here late afternoon. Rather mild. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
Any lingering rain should clear the east this evening with showers following close by. Becoming dry and clear by midnight, but cloud will once again build from the west overnight. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Wednesday:
Another mild and murky start on Wednesday, with rain and cloud slow to clear. Dry for a time before further cloud and rain arrive from the southwest in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Remaining rather changeable and often windy with rain possible each day. Bright or sunny interludes remain likely. Mild by day but chilly on Thursday night with isolated frosts possible.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.